

COMMENDS TO GROUP DEEP SIGNIFICANCE OF ARMISTICE DAY

Rev. Walter F. Humphrey Asks That Sacrifice Not Be In Vain

AT ARMISTICE DINNER

J. C. Schmidt, 9th District Commander, and Others Speak at Langhorne

LANGHORNE, Nov. 6.—A dinner-dance arranged by American Legion Auxiliary of Jesse W. Soby Post, in the Memorial House, Saturday evening, marked the 21st anniversary of the Armistice. Covers were arranged for 77 members of the Post, Auxiliary and their guests.

Participants in the evening affair were Mrs. Ernest Robinson, president of the Auxiliary, who extended a hearty welcome; Joseph Zalot, adjutant of the post, who served as toastmaster; the Rev. Walter F. Humphrey, chaplain of the post, who asked the blessing; and brief messages by the following: Harry Heller, Treviso, new commander of Soby Post; Mrs. Roy Smith, president of Montgomery-Bucks Counties Council of Auxiliaries; Mrs. John McGill, eastern director of the Auxiliaries; Jacob C. Schmidt, Bristol, commander of the ninth district, American Legion.

One of the features of the evening was presentation of selections by the glee club of the Auxiliary, participants being: Mrs. Robert Leedom, Mrs. Harry Friedrich, Mrs. James Tracy, Mrs. Gilbert Bonnell, the Misses Rita and Mary Keating, aided by Messrs. Howard Ott and Harry Friedrich.

Mrs. Smith, Bi-County president, asked the unit to concentrate on membership during the coming year, stressing need of more associated with the Auxiliary. The Eastern director, Mrs. McGill, in speaking of need of peace, said that "the world is looking to us more than ever."

In a brief address the Rev. Humphrey reminded the men and women assembled on the Armistice anniversary, of the countless ones who came back from the World War, "broken of body, and shattered of mind," and of the thousands more who did not return. "We do not know the suffering and agony they have been paying down across the years. Let us however resolve that they shall be fully cared for, and that they shall know no need. Let their sacrifice be not in vain. Let us go forward to make America the America we desire. I commend to you the deeper significance of Armistice Day, especially as we go through these trying times."

To Mrs. George Morris, South Langhorne, was a past president's pin presented on behalf of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Robinson making the presentation.

Mr. Schmidt, the ninth district commander, spoke of the recent lifting of the embargo, and told of the plan and hope of the American Legion down through the years for large army and navy for adequate protection for the United States.

A delicious turkey dinner was served.

The favors for the women were corsages and for the men boutonnières, the white button chrysanthemums being tied with red ribbon. Table bouquets and lighted candles were in the national colors; and patriotic songs and selections reminiscent of the World War period were sung by the group.

A bouquet was sent to Mrs. Annie Soby, Edgely, mother of the late George W. Soby, in whose honor the post was named.

DONATIONS RECEIVED FOR ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION

Following donations are acknowledged toward a $2,000 fund being solicited by A Citizens Committee to defray the expenses of an Americanism demonstration to be held here by the American Legion of the Ninth District with the Robert W. Bracken Post as host, on Armistice Day.

If "Bendix," Clarence W. Winter's pet goat, isn't careful, it might get the "rams."

Not content with the regular meals it receives it has developed a liking for tobacco. We shouldn't use the term "developed" probably, for the tobacco tasted good to "Bennie" from the first.

Pipe tobacco, cigars, cigarettes—it makes little difference. But hold it between your fingers, close to "Bennie's" mouth, and it disappears as if by magic.

WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE REPUBLICAN TOMORROW

The Republican candidates for county and state offices appearing on the ballot to be voted tomorrow received the approval of approximately 9500 Republican voters at the Primary election held September 12th.

Everyone of the Republican candidates is well and favorably known in the community in which he or she lives for their honesty, ability, and possessing the qualifications for the offices they seek.

For some years the public affairs and business of Bucks County has been under Republican administration and the reason the Republican Party has been kept in power in Bucks County is that it has given the County an honest, capable and efficient administration of county affairs.

Bucks County still maintains as low a tax rate as any County in its class in Pennsylvania, in spite of increased expense, and compared with neighboring Counties, it is low in its per capita debt.

The per capita debt of Pennsylvania as a whole is $67.70 for each person. In Philadelphia County it is $61.13 for each person; in Montgomery County it is $48.77; in Lehigh County it is $40.12; IN BUCKS COUNTY IT IS $30.46.

Contrary to many other counties in Pennsylvania, the Republican County Officials take charge of and work with their deputies and clerks, and perform their share of the duties of the offices, six days a week. You will find no "drones" in the Court House or at the Administration Building.

It is a matter of history that when the Democratic Party secures control of National or State Government, its officials are very free in spending the public money.

When the Democratic Party secured control of the National Government in 1932, the public debt in round figures was $19,000,000. Within six years the Democratic Party has increased the debt to approximately $40,000,000.

When the Earle Administration took office in January, 1935, there were 8825 employees in the various State Departments. At the end of the Earle Administration there were 12,436 employees, an increase of 3,611.

Expenditures during the second biennium of the Democratic regime (1937-39) were 181 millions more than the biennium 1933-35 which directly preceded the Earle Administration.

In other words, State expenditures during 1937-39 were 78% higher than the appropriations for 1933-35, under Republican control.

The Earle Administration not only spent every dollar received in revenue, but increased the State debt by 56% and, in addition, spent 50 million dollars more than it took in.

It went even further than that. It not only increased the State debt by 56% through the issuance of State Authority bonds, and put the State in the hole for 50 millions of dollars of excess expenditures, but it entered into commitments which would have required 160 millions of entirely new and additional taxes to have carried out Governor James and the Republican Legislature:

1. Cut the ordinary operating costs of State Government so as to save 7 millions of dollars between January 1939 and May 1939.
2. Saved 17½ millions of dollars in the appropriation for the operating costs of the State Government in the biennium 1939-41.
3. Wiped out commitments under which the Democrats had arranged to spend $160,000,000 more which would have required that much new and additional taxation.

We saw the Earle Administration attempt to rewrite the Constitution to suit its own purposes. Two years later the effort was renewed through a series of Amendments which would have authorized uncontrolled borrowing, plus taxation and spending practically without limit. Defeated in both efforts, they turned to unconstitutional legislation ground out by a compliant Democratic Legislature.

Republicans And Repeal

Washington, Nov. 4.
IT IS significant that in its final stage the fight over repeal of the arms embargo should have lost almost completely its advertised non-partisan aspect and become practically a party proposition. But that is what the vote in the House by which the bill was passed unquestionably made of it.

TRUE enough, many strong Republican newspapers supported repeal and some of the outstanding Republican leaders, including one conspicuous Presidential probability—Senator Taft, of Ohio—lined up with the President in this issue.

It is true, too, that the Republican 1936 candidates for President and Vice-President—Mr. Landow and Colonel Knox—were emphatically for repeal. But, in the Senate, a majority of Republicans were opposed, and in the House the solidarity was so great as to be almost unanimous.

IN that body 143 of the 164 Republican members present stood against repeal. In the light of those votes—particularly that of the House—the non-partisan pretense cannot be maintained. In the light of that vote, the Democrats took the repeal side, the Republicans the other. Passage of the bill was not an Administration victory, because it would have been impossible except for the support of the anti-New Deal Democrats. But it was a Democratic victory. That is clear. It is clear that had the bill failed the Continued on Page Three

BRISTOL PRODUCT RECEIVES 4 AWARDS

Plastics Made at Rohm & Haas Plant Are Highly Honored

USED IN VARIOUS WAYS

Four major awards and two honorable mentions have been given for plastics made at the Rohm & Haas plant here and from which the prize winners were fabricated. The plastics are plexiglas and crystalite. The awards were won in the fourth annual modern plastics competition. The awards were given for an invisible contact lens, improved modern dentures, window or counter display fixtures, and a transparent valve. Honorable mention was accorded to a fluorescent lighting luminaire and also a surgical master kit.

Unlimited possibilities for demonstrating what goes on inside mechanically operated machines and devices are suggested by the transparent Cash Standard streamlined pressure reducing valve which was chosen as an award winner in the Industrial Cast division of the Fourth Annual Modern Plastics Competition.

The valve is an exact replica in Plexiglas of the new standard metal Reducing Valve manufactured by A. W. Cash Company, Decatur, Ill. This crystal-clear plastic permits actual vision of the complete valve, inside and outside, showing the various parts in their working position, without the need for disassembling or cutting away part of the housing of a metal valve. The streamlined interior design and the simplicity which eliminates complicated parts, so likely to get out of order, may be appreciated at a glance.

Responsible for the design and fabrication of the transparent plastic valve is Dave Swedlow, of Hollywood, Cal., who bent the Plexiglas, supplied by Rohm & Haas, to rough casting form and then machined the rough blocks into finished parts.

An invisible contact lens, for those who are obliged to wear a corrective lens yet wish to avoid the outward appearance of doing so, was considered worthy of one of the chief awards in the scientific group.

Designed by William Feinbloom, New York City, for Optical Research, Inc., also of New York City, this lens is intended to overcome visual difficulties caused by keratoconus and scarred corneas, and to replace ordinary spectacles wherever desirable. Slipped under the eye lid, it rests against the ball of the eye where it is held in the proper position by a molded plastic rim, colored to match the eye. Once in place, the lens is entirely invisible.

Naturally the lens itself is scientifically ground to furnish the proper correction and the plastic rims, only fifteen thousandths of an inch, are also molded with optical precision. Made of "Crystalite," supplied by Rohm & Haas Co., the plastic rim does not irritate the eye. The rims are molded by Optical Research, Inc., from dies made by Precise Instrument Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.

A recognition that the new methyl methacrylate denture represents a notable advance in prosthetic dentistry is found in the fact that this denture has won a major award in the Fourth Annual Modern Plastics Competition sponsored by Modern Plastics Magazine of New York.

Nearly 800 entries were made in the competition, covering the entire range of plastic applications in the industry. Continued on Page Three

Church Receives Banners On Its 50th Anniversary

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Nov. 6.—"Banners Hoisted" was the sermon topic selected by the Rev. Howard W. Oursler, pastor of Cornwells Methodist Church, last evening, upon the occasion of presentation of two silk banners to the church by Camp 313, Patriotic Order of Americans. The presentation and service were in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the Cornwells Church.

The banners were the American and the Christian flags, and presentation on behalf of Camp 313 was made by one of the members, Mrs. Charles Hanson, they being accepted for the church by the pastor. Rising in salute to the American flag the congregation sang "America"; and after a salute to the Christian flag, "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus" was sung.

The message of the clergyman was woven about the significance of the Christian flag, the text being from Psalm 20:5: "In the name of our God we will set up our banners."

The Rev. Oursler said in part that there is now on a conflict between the forces of Satan and Christ that is as real as the conflict now raging between the nations of Europe. "When God sent Christ into the world He was by that act declaring war on sin. The Christian fulfills the will of God when he joins the Lord Jesus in unmitigated warfare against sin. The Bible gives assurance of the ultimate victory for truth and righteousness, for the day will come when 'every knee shall bow, and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God!'"

In spite of the inclement weather the edifice was well filled for the inspirational service, the gathering including a number of members of the P. O. of A.

BLAZE LEVELS BIG BARN AT EMILIE; LOSS PUT AT $30,000

Wistar Institute Scene of Big Fire Saturday Afternoon

ALL THE CATTLE SAVED

Experimental Bang's Disease Herd Gotten Out in Safety By Employees

One of the finest barns in the East, valued at between $25,000 and $30,000 was totally destroyed Saturday afternoon when ignited by a spark from a toddler shredder. The barn on the Wistar Institute Biological farm at Emilie, was owned by the University of Pennsylvania. The loss was estimated yesterday by Dr. E. J. Farris, director of the institute. Dr. Farris stated that his figures did not include the contents of the structure, such as crops and farm machinery which were consumed by the flames.

The blaze started at about 1:15 p. m., and was first seen by Samuel Ahlum and son, Elmer. The Ahlums were engaged in shredding fodder with the machinery used in the shredding located outside of the structure. A pipe carried the shredded fodder inside the barn up into the mow. It is presumed that some foreign substance, such as a nail, stone or piece of some hard substance, went through the shredder and that the sparks from this as it came into contact with the swiftly-moving knives, passed through the pipe and into the mow where it found plenty of inflammable material in the shredded fodder to ignite.

The structure was stone stable high and was used by the Wistar Institute in its experiments for Bang's disease. The Bang's disease herd of cows was isolated in the structure. Fourteen head of cows, a steer, two horses, and a bull were gotten out in safety and a number of pigs were also removed from a nearby pen.

Crops consisting of 60 tons of hay, straw, wheat and barley along with two cribs partly filled with corn, were destroyed as were also an ensilage cutter, corn sheller, hammer mill, two wagons, manure spreader, manure carrier, double set of harness and other equipment.

A call was sent out immediately for fire companies when the blaze was discovered. Bristol Consolidated arrived with two pieces of apparatus and were quickly followed by eight or ten other companies from a wide area. The firemen, numbering perhaps 80 men put up a successful battle in confining the flames to the barn. Other buildings are located close by and especially the house occupied by the Ahlum family. The house was in the direct line of the fire but a shift in the wind aided the firemen. Some of the furniture was removed, but as the danger lessened the removal of the furniture was stopped.

Firemen had plenty of water about 1000 feet from the fire as there are numerous ponds on the Bolton farm of which the Wistar Institute is a part. These ponds are strategically located in relation to the buildings.

Edgely and Newportville firemen remained at the scene until Sunday morning, watching over the burning ruins. The Second Alarmers from Willow Grove arrived during the night and served the firemen with hot drinks and sandwiches.

Two chicken brooder houses located between the burning barn and Ahlum Continued on Page Four

Emilie Church Trustees Purchase Emilie School

Sold at public auction on Saturday, the one-room school house at Emilie was purchased by the trustees of Emilie Methodist Church. The purchase price was revealed at $1290.

Bidding as representative of the board of trustees was Frank H. Hibbs, of Emilie, bidders being few in number.

The plan, it is stated, is to use the one-story stone structure as a meeting room each Sunday for the Men's Bible class of the Emilie Methodist Sunday School. This class, through kindness of the board of school directors, has been meeting there for about one year.

The building has one large room, two cloak rooms, and a small basement.

It is proposed eventually to use a portion of the half-acre plot for a burial ground, and also for driveway into the burial plots. The school, located on Emilie-Fallsington Road, adjoins the church property and the present burial ground.

The structure was erected in 1856, and was not used last school term nor this term for school sessions, pupils being transported to Edgely.

The men's Bible class was organized about one year ago by Frank H. Hibbs, Trenton, N. J., he being the teacher of the group. There are about 30 in the class.

The forum in Bristol Friends Meeting House is scheduled for tonight at eight o'clock. Dr. Vernon Nash, world traveler, will speak on "The World's Option—Utopia or Chaos." The public is invited.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Apr. 4, 1878. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The following items are culled from The Bucks County Gazette of April 4, 1878:

A meeting to organize the new Council was held on Monday morning in the council chamber. Charles York was sworn in as William Londerbough's successor, after which Symington Phillips was elected president, C. W. Peirce, treasurer; J. W. Wright, clerk; B. E. Gilkeson, corporation counsel, and William Londerbough, pound-keeper. The salaries were fixed as follows: treasurer, $25 per year; clerk, $100; corporation counsel, $25, and constable $400 (an increase of $100). Constable Yardley reported that he had sold the wharves at auction, as follows: Cedar street, Dr. Pursell, $5; Wood, H. M. Wright, $8.50; Franklin, Dr. Adams, $5; and Walnut, G. M. Dorrance, $5.

General John Davis, of Davisville, died on Monday of this week in the 91st year of his age. He was born in Solebury township, August 7, 1787, and with the exception of about 16 years of his early life spent in Maryland, he has been a continuous resident of this county. He had occupied very important trusts, having been appraiser of public works; surveyor of the port, collector of customs in Philadelphia. He was a member of the U. S. Congress from 1838 to 1840, and came within 22 votes of a second election. He received the title of Major-General of Volunteers during the war of 1812, having enlisted in the service of his country as a private soldier, he received in rapid succession the offices of ensign, captain, lieutenant-colonel, colonel, and at last major-general. In his later days he dwelt with peculiar pride upon his soldier life, and would sometimes for the amusement of his younger friends, dress up in his well-preserved regimentals. He took a very active part in favor of the Union, in the late rebellion, both in public addresses and by his benevolences.

The Temperance Lyceum was crowded to overflowing on Friday evening, and although the program was longer than usual, the interest was unabated and the order good. Richard E. Shaw began the exercises with a solo, which told that "Birdie has gone with the Angels," and was appropriately followed by an anonymous essay upon "Juvenile Responsibility" which was read by the secretary. Fannie Horn recited some verses which cautioned every one to "Never Touch the Wine Cup," and Miss Eva J. Swain, Miss Carrie Laing, Miss Kate Hay, Joseph Swain and Horace Ivins sang a chorus which served as an introduction to the Shakespearean representation by James Lyndall, Esq.

Rev. J. H. Drumm, D. D., is in Bristol, having but recently returned from Texas where during the past year he has been for the benefit of his health. Being unable at present to engage in parochial work, he wishes to get a few private pupils to prepare for college, or professional or commercial life.

The school board held a meeting this afternoon and the proposals for the new school house were opened. The estimates ranged from $10,496, to $15,325, which was so much higher than the board were willing to pay that all the proposals were rejected, and at the time of our going to press the board were still in session and will probably invite proposals for a less expensive building.

H. Wesley Dyer has rented the restaurant under Nathan Tyler's clothing store, and will engage in the truck business in its season, as well as the oyster business in months which have an "r" in them.

The singing school under the charge of Aaron R. Taylor will close tomorrow evening with a concert given by the class in the Presbyterian Church.

We congratulate the people of Bristol upon the successful organization of a public library. The result is particularly gratifying to the members of the Bristol Institute with whom the project originated; and the committee of 15 are deserving of all praise for the energy they have displayed in getting the matter into such a satisfactory shape.

The trials of plows, etc., under the auspices of the Solebury Farmers' Club, to come off next Saturday, the 6th, bids fair to be even more extensive than was anticipated. A dynamometer has been promised from the Eastern Experimental Farm to test the draft.

the affairs of that office and the many cases under his jurisdiction have been handled in a manner that has been a credit to that office.

Dr. Moyer was born on a farm near Silverdale on March 2, 1887. He is a graduate of the West Chester Teachers' College, 1906, and the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine and Surgery, 1912.

Mr. Watson attended Tyro Hall school, Huguesian Free School and Buckingham Friends' School at Lahaska. He farmed with his father on the Watson homestead until 1928, when he entered the insurance business.

He is one of the 14 founders and is at present a member of the board of trustees of the Loyal Republican Club of Bucks County, which has a membership of over 1700. He is also a member of the Buckingham Farmers' Club, Tyro Hall Grange and a number of fraternal organizations.

The candidate has always entered into the spirit of community helpfulness both in his home township as well as in Doylestown, where his business headquarters are located.

A native of Spring Creek, Warren county, Pennsylvania, Mr. Nichols was born on June 25, 1883. He attended the elementary schools of his community and later the high school, from which he was graduated in 1900. For two years, also, he attended the Oil City Business College.

Leaving the latter, he learned the electrical trade and later he decided to take up railroading. After having served as a fireman for several years he was promoted in 1912 to the position of engineer on the New York Central Railroad.

Mr. Nichols located in Morrisville in 1917 and from that time until about four years ago he was in the electrical business. He then became employed by the Robertson Art Tile Company, with which firm he is still associated.

In 1929 he married Miss Frances E. Taylor, a native of Morrisville. She has been a life-long resident of that borough.

For five years Mr. Nichols served as scoutmaster of the Episcopal Church troop, and in 1933 he was elected a member of Morrisville Borough Council. He was re-elected to Council in 1937 and at present he is serving his second term as president of Borough Council.

years, have endorsed his candidacy. In the Primary he also won the nomination on the Democratic ticket without opposition.

Appointed to the bench in March, 1929, by former Governor John S. Fisher, to become an associate of the late President Judge William C. Ryan, Judge Keller was the eighteenth Judge to serve Bucks county. He served a few months in office before being elected for his first full 10-year term. Judge Keller became President Judge on May 9, 1930, after the death of the late William C. Ryan in April, 1930.

Personal ability and merit, together with a record for fairness and efficiency, are but a few of the outstanding qualifications that warrant the re-nomination and election of Judge Keller for a second term. Judge Keller's record on the bench can be pointed to with pride by the profession throughout the State.

In Bucks county, the election of Judge Keller to the bench 10 years ago, followed by the appointment of former United States District Attorney Calvin S. Boyer as his Associate Judge in June, 1930, marked the beginning of a very much improved judicial service made necessary by the increasing court business. Instead of cases being carried over from term to term, business of the Court has been dispatched with promptness and the calendar kept up-to-date at all times. Very few reversals by the appellate courts speak well for Judge Keller's record.

Judge Keller was born in Bedminster, son of Lewis Keller, who for years was a prominent merchant. He received his education in the public schools and the West Chester State Teachers' College. After three years of teaching he entered Gettysburg College, graduating in 1901, and subsequently from the law school of the

1. The names of the above sixteen Republican candidates appeared on the Republican Primary Ballot at the Primary Election held on September 12th, and approximately 3500 Republican voters went to the Primary Election and nominated them. Some had opposition, others did not.

2. Every one of the Republican candidates is well and favorably known in the community in which he or she lives for their honesty, ability and possessing the qualifications for the offices they seek.

3. For some years the public affairs and business of Bucks County have been under Republican administration and the reason the Republican Party has been kept in power in Bucks County, is that it has given the County an honest, capable and efficient administration of county affairs.

4. Bucks County still maintains as low a tax rate as any County in its class in Pennsylvania, in spite of increased expenses, and compared with neighboring Counties, it is low in its per capita debt.

The per capita debt of Pennsylvania as a whole is $67.70 for each person. In Philadelphia County it is $61.13 for each person; in Montgomery County it is $18.77; in Lehigh County it is $10.12; IN BUCKS COUNTY IT IS $30.46.

5. Contrary to many other counties in Pennsylvania, the Republican county officials take charge of and work with their deputies and clerks, and perform their share of the duties of the office, six days a week. You will find no "drones" in the Court House or at the Administration Building.

6. It is a matter of history that when the Democratic Party secures control of National or State government, its officials are very free in spending the public money.

When the Democratic Party secured control of the National Government in 1932, the public debt in round figures was $19,000,000,000. Within six years the Democratic Party has increased the public debt to approximately $10,000,000,000!

When the Earle Administration took office in January, 1935, there were 8825 employees in the various State Departments. At the end of the Earle Administration there were 12,436 employees, an increase of 3611.

Expenditures during the second biennium of the Democratic regime (1937-39) were 181 millions more than the biennium 1933-35 which directly preceded the Earle Administration.

In other words, State expenditures during 1937-39 were 78% higher than the appropriations for 1933-35, under Republican control.

The Earle Administration not only spent every dollar received in revenue, but increased the State debt by 56% and, in addition, spent 50 million dollars more than it took in.

It went even further than that, it not only increased the State debt by 56% through the issuance of State Authority bonds, and put the State in the hole for 50 millions of dollars of excess expenditures, but it entered into commitments which would have required 160 millions of entirely new and additional taxes to have carried out.

Governor James and the Republican Legislature:

1. Cut the ordinary operating costs of State Government so as to save 7 millions of dollars between January 1939 and May 1939.

2. Saves 17 1/2 millions of dollars in the appropriation for the operating costs of the State Government in the biennium 1939-1941.

3. Wiped out commitments under which the Democrats had arranged to spend $160,000,000 more which would have required that much new and additional taxation.

We saw the Earle Administration attempt to re-write the Constitution to suit its own purposes. Two years later the effort was renewed through a series of Amendments which would have authorized uncontrolled borrowing, plus taxation and spending practically without limit. Defeated in both efforts, they turned to unconstitutional legislation ground out by a compliant Democratic Legislature.

Nearly a score of these enactments have been set aside by the Supreme Court. Defiant mal-administration of public affairs has brought criminal indictments against former high-ranking Democratic officials, one of whom already has been convicted, together with two co-conspirators, with nine others still to be tried.

The Commonwealth was fortunate to have such a General Assembly as the one of 1939 and a Governor such as Arthur H. James, both standing for fair play, and for reason, economy and progress under a truly constitutional government.

Their work merits approval, and November 7th next affords the opportunity to do so.

7. The Republican candidates believe in efficiency and economy in Government, instead of waste and extravagance.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE
"Dust Be My Destiny," the new film today at the Grand Theatre, has John Garfield and Priscilla Lane in the starring roles, and although this is the third picture in which they have been teamed, it is the first one in which they achieve what promises to be lasting marital happiness.

For all its happy ending, however, the new picture carries the young couple over a hard and rocky road before they reach the end of the rainbow. Throughout most of the film's poignant and often melodramatically exciting course, the two youngsters flee like a couple of hunted animals from officers who believe the boy has murdered his girl-wife's step-father.

RITZ THEATRE
For 25 years the name of John M. Stahl has been associated with great pictures, and now he adds another triumph to the already long list. The picture is "When Tomorrow Comes," seen last night at the Ritz Theatre.

As a vehicle for his stars, Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer, Stahl has selected an unusual problem story in "When Tomorrow Comes." The adaptation provides a rich field for his directorial abilities and the acting.

A new method of "handling" a child star was put into practice by Director Edward H. Griffith during the filming of "Honey Moon in Bali," new romantic comedy co-starring Fred MacMurray, Madeleine Carroll and Allan Jones which Paramount will present on Monday at the Bristol Theatre.

The child is Carolyn Lee, new four-year-old, who is being hailed as one of the generation's greatest "finds." Carolyn's mother was on the set daily with the youngster, but her father, Warren Copp, was in Wheeling, W. Va., where he is an executive of a steel company.

tries, arts, and sciences. Two specimens of the methacrylate denture were entered in the Scientific section of the competition, one by the Vernon-Benshoff Company of Pittsburgh, the other by the L. D. Caulk Company, of Milford, Del. The two dentures share equally in the award.

A jury of experts made the award to this new denture on the ground of various features of interest to the dental profession aside from those of strength, physical and chemical stability, tissue tolerance, cleanliness, etc. Among features of interest to the judges were the denture's aesthetic properties, the "feel" of cleanliness, naturalness of color, and the fact that its color reflects a more life-like appearance into the shading of the porcelain teeth so that evidence of artificiality is reduced to a minimum.

The Vernon-Benshoff denture employed the plastic Veronite produced by Rohm & Haas Company, and was designed by the Henry P. Boos Dental Laboratories, Minneapolis, Minn. The Caulk entry was made of Lucitone, a product of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company, Arlington, N. J., and is distributed to the dental profession by L. D. Caulk Co., Milford, Del. The Lucitone denture was processed by Charles J. Tracy, Pacific Coast representative of L. D. Caulk Co. and a well-known clinician in dental circles.

beauty of a transparent display fixture, designed by Frederic Weinberg, Philadelphia, was recognized with one of the principal awards in the Industrial Cast classification of the Fourth Annual Modern Plastics Competition, conducted by Modern Plastics magazine.

Fragile though it may look, the graceful upward sweeping arm and hand are substantially capable of dramatic merchandise display. A handbag, bracelet, necklace, gloves or almost any small piece of finery placed in the hand or hung from the fingers, appears natural and at its best. The transparency of the plastic, Plexiglas, makes the fixture so unobtrusive in itself that it accentuates rather than detracts from any piece placed on it. This display hand illustrates the designer's use of the versatility of Plexiglas, a product of the Rohm & Haas Company, which softens in hot water and can be bent or formed into almost any design.

Although the piece is fashioned from 1/16th of an inch thick, a surprising amount of strength is built in by skillful cutting and twisting to shape. This fabrication work was done by Crossdale & de Angelis, Philadelphia.

Incorporating the highest optical efficiency of any translucent substance known in point of transmission, dispersion, and reflection, a plastic luminaire for fluorescent lighting was given honorable mention in the Industrial Cast classification of the Fourth Annual Modern Plastics Competition, recently held by Modern Plastics magazine.

After the first flair of excitement about fluorescent lighting, plastics materials manufacturers set out to develop a material sufficiently flexible to interpret the new shape of fixtures brought into use through this type of lighting and at the same time one capable of the high light diffusion peculiar to the fluorescent lamp. That Plexiglas, product of Rohm & Haas Company, from which the award winning luminaire was fashioned, has the necessary qualities is evidenced by the fact that the fixture has been approved both by lighting engineers.

Designed by Gilbert Rohde, New York City, it represents the simplest form for appearance, fabrication and light-efficiency that is possible. It is relatively dust-free and will maintain its efficiency permanently.

The development of a new material which multiplies the use of an older plastic application won recognition in the Fourth Annual Modern Plastics Competition held by Modern Plastics magazine. The Surgical Master Kit, made by Curvite Products, Inc., of New York, originators of cold light plastics instruments, was judged worthy of honorable mention in the scientific group because its instruments were made of a new heat-resistant plastic which could be sterilized by boiling in water.

The variety of instruments in the kit has been cleverly worked out to reach almost any portion of the human anatomy where a bright cold light is required for operating or diagnostic study. Made of hollable Plexiglas, developed and manufactured by Rohm & Haas, the instruments will not conduct heat or electricity and are unbreakable.

Formal announcement of all awards for entries in the competition will be made in the November issue of Modern Plastics magazine, followed by a presentation dinner at the Waldorf Astoria, on November 14th.

The Great Game of Politics

responsibility would have been on the Republicans, who, in the House at least, were practically united against it.

YET the strange thing is that in neither House nor Senate was opposition to the bill made a party matter or a test of leadership loyalty. On the contrary, Republican leaders—Mr. Martin, in the House, particularly—let it be known that on this issue Republicans should vote as they pleased without any obligation to follow anyone. He—Mr. Martin—was against repeal, but it was distinctly understood that this was not a party proposition, that voting with the President on this occasion would in no way impair a Republican's party standing or be held against him. And Mr. Martin refrained from giving any advice to any Republican. It was left as an individual choice.

THAT, under such circumstances, the Republicans in the House, supposed to be the body most responsive to public sentiment and in which every member must come up for re-nomination and re-election in less than a year—that the House Republicans should be so much more solid against repeal than those in the Senate, needs an explanation. In one body the Republicans were massed against the bill, in the other not. What is the reason? The answer undoubtedly is that the Republicans in the House are almost exclusively from rural districts. The number of Republican members from the large cities is negligible.

FOR example, there is only one Republican in the House—Mr. Bruce Barton—from the whole of New York city, only one from Chicago; one—Mr. Tinkham—from Boston; two from Philadelphia; one from Pittsburgh; none from Baltimore; none from St. Louis; two from Cleveland; one from Los Angeles; one from San Francisco, and two from Cincinnati. Practically all the rest of the 169 are from small towns or districts preponderantly rural. In the 1938 Congressional election it was the country districts which turned Republican; the big cities stayed Democratic. In the counties it is an accepted and proved fact that sentiment is more strongly for peace at any price than in the cities—particularly the cities near the Eastern Seaboard. In the country districts painstaking and comprehensive polls, such as that of the Kansas City Star, revealed the difference in sentiment between the rural voter and the urban voter with convincing clarity.

EVERY test that has been made shows the rural voter stronger than the city voter for staying out of war regardless of what happens to England and France. In the cities various polls show a percentage running up to twenty-five of people who feel we should go in if there is danger of Allied defeat. There is no such percentage among the rural voters. Among them the arguments against repeal far outweighed the arguments for. Among them the feeling is strong that the anti-repealers are on the peace side; the repealers on the other. All of which adequately explains the attitude of the House Republicans. In lining up against repeal they were in accord with what they believed the sentiment of the people of their districts. Otherwise, there would have been no such Republican solidarity. Otherwise they would have voted differently.

IT is not often in the Senate that men disregard public sentiment of their States and vote their own convictions; it is even less frequent in the House. A Senator can take chances, but in the House, if a member misgives sentiment in his district on a vital matter, he has signed his political death warrant. On this issue House Republicans voted to please their constituents and do not care whether the party leaders, the metropolitan press and the big cities are pleased or not.

before the year is out, all records for the bureau will be shattered. More than 60 per cent of the applicants come from New Jersey, with Trenton furnishing a major portion of the Jersey applications. Another 25 per cent come from Philadelphia, while Bucks county furnishes a very small portion of the license applications.

Eighteen applicants in October had been divorced, the docket shows. More than 85 per cent of the couples were married at civil ceremony by justices of the peace in various sections of the county.

The applicants came from 10 other states besides Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Approximately 55 per cent of the female applicants in October had occupations other than housework.

The average age of the male applicants in October was 27 years, while the females averaged 25. Only 17 applicants were under 20.

At the rate applications are being received at the local office daily, the 3,000-mark will be reached by January 1, 1940, in the opinion of Miss Eleanor Worthington, Clerk of Orphans' Court.
